Meeting Info

The next Patriot Chapter meeting will take place on Friday, October 5, at 7:30 p.m. at the First Parish Unitarian Church in Billerica, MA. The church is located on Concord Road, just as it meets Route 3A (Boston Road) at the Billerica Town Common. The October meeting will be a build session with a business meeting, Show-and-Tell, and a raffle.

Ken Sullivan built this neat 1:25 scale Batmobile OOB from the Polar Lights kit. Ken used MRP black lacquer and SpazStix Mirror Chrome for most of the paint job, plus various acrylics and an orange paint pen. Ken writes, "A fun project for a cool subject. The kit is easy to build, but tough to paint and decal. The finish demands a dust-free, gloss black paint job to stand out. The decals were a nightmare to apply properly to contoured areas of the body. Very lucky to find a paint pen that was an exact match with the orange decals so I could leave off the worst offenders and use the paint pen instead, which I applied with a tiny brush."

Special Report: Patcon

I'm happy to report that we scored another success with Patcon 2018, which took place on Sunday, September 16 at the Hudson Elks Lodge. This year's show went especially smoothly, due in large part to the large number of chapter members who came to help during the day.

Show attendance was very similar to that of 2017: 64 contestants (up 1 from last year) submitted 271 entries (down 48). 134 people, including 12 children, came to see the show as walk-ins (up 10).

As was true last year, we weren't able to get into the hall on Saturday night. Fortunately, we had a lot of set-up help from club members starting at 6:30 on Sunday morning, and everything was all ready to go with time to spare.

The three superwomen, Kathy Lobo, Kaja Michaels and Jane Moss, were back again to run the registration table with the able assistance of Mike O'Keefe. Many thanks to all of you.

After a brief meeting shortly after 12:00, the judging teams swung into action. We're all hugely grateful to all the judges, especially those who stepped forward from other clubs, for the fantastic job they did. Special thanks to Robert Butler for again organizing the open judging teams.

We're extremely grateful to all the vendors, to John Leavitt, Joe Farina and Bill Grigg for their seminar presentations, to T and his food wagon, to the many people and clubs who supported us financially with trophy sponsorships, and to the committee members and other club members who worked so long and hard to make Patcon 2018 a success.

Before we present the list of winners, a few statistics. Of the 270 entries in the contest, 67 were aircraft (down 36 from last year), 44 were armor (down two from last year), 72 were automotive (down 18 from last year), 13 were ships (up 3 from last year), 18 were figures (down 8 from last year), 11 were dioramas and vignettes (down 2 from last year), and 19 were space/sci-fi (up 3 from last year). The 6 collections (at least 3 items in each) included aircraft, figures and vignettes, so actual totals for those genres are somewhat higher. There were 9 junior entries, up 1 from last year.

1:48 single engine prop was the largest single category in the aircraft genre with 12 entries. Tracked AFVs through WW2 led the armor categories with 13 entries, Showroom stock to street legal led the automotive categories with 24 entries and was the largest single category in the entire contest. And now, the winners:

Show-and-Tell Gallery

Jeff Brown's 28 mm wargaming figure of a Tau Empire Broadside battlesuit from Warhammer 40k. Jeff writes, "The army is themed around the blossoming sakura tree. This unit serves an anti-armor (or monstrous creature) role with its heavy rail rifle. It can alternatively be equipped with a high-yield missile pod. I wanted it to be damaged so I made it look like it was being repaired by a drone with a new gun (and arm) resting against the tree to replace the missing one. There is a broken Ork axe embedded in the other shoulder. The drone was painted to resemble a koi fish, further building on the Japanese theme."

Jeff Brown's 1:64 scale Hot Wheels Dodge Dakota. Jeff writes, "The truck was painted for a post-apocalyptic death race tabletop game called Gaslands. I raided the bits bin and found a bunch of pieces for 1/100 tanks to use for this. Also a few warhammer 40k bits. Not many people post pictures of pink trucks on the internet, and I had a bunch of pink paint left over from my other project. I was happy with the yellow stripe, for which I used Tamiya masking tape. The model was airbrushed with a combo of Tamiya and Vallejo acrylics. Then I did an oil wash of burnt umber and weathered it with a sponge."

John Walker's 1:35 scale Tiger I (Academy), built mostly OOB. John added wires for the front lights and brackets for the air intake hoses. Paints are Tamiya acrylics with AK wash, weathering powders, pastels and pencil lead. Decals are from the kit. Markings are for Pz. Abt. 503, Kursk, Russia, 1943.

John Walker's 1:35 scale Toldi I (Hobbyboss), built OOB. The model was painted with Tamiya acrylics and weathered with AK wash, pastels and pencil lead. Decals are from Bison; the figure is from Miniart. Markings are for the Hungarian 2nd Recce. Battalion, Russia, 1941. John adds, "The individual track links were terrible!"

47th RoF (Lancashire)
Saratoga Campaign 1777

SERGEANT
Col. Phinney's MASS 18th Cont. Reg't
Ft Mt. Independence, Autumn 1776

John Walker's 54 mm American Revolutionary War figure (Airfix). John added the bag, epaulette and waist belt made from two-part epoxy. The musket is from Michael Roberts. Buckles were made from stretched sprue. The position of arms and body were changed to pose it reloading the musket. Paints are mostly Vallejo and some craft acrylics. The figure depicts a sergeant in Col. Phinney's 18th Massachusetts Regiment as it appeared at Fort Mount Independence in the autumn of 1776. This figure was awarded a gold medal at Patcon last Sunday.

Minutes from the January Meeting

The meeting was convened by club president Dave Schmidt.

1) Patcon

We have a good number of volunteers for the show.

The situation with the hall is good. The new hall manager is much more understanding of our requirements. We are expected to break down tables and stack them on their trolleys, and all chairs we use are to be stacked, but they can be left in the hall. Trash is to be put in dumpsters.

The food vendor has been confirmed for the show. He has asked if he can turn up early to do breakfast. After a brief discussion on the effect on vendor setup if he turned up early and suggesting a time when he could turn up, it was left at letting him turn up when he wanted and deal with issues if they arose.

The treasurer proposed increasing the cash floats for the registration desk. After discussion it was decided to increase both the registration and raffle floats significantly, especially the number of $1 and $5 bills.

2) Club Trip

If a trip is to happen in 2018, it must be decided at this meeting. The Collins Foundation in Stow MA is opening a new museum which can be previewed on their website. This site was proposed to be added to the list of possible destinations, but it was suggested that this be put forward as the destination for this year. This was generally agreed and an email should be sent to all members soon.

A discussion ensued that given that admission to the Collins Foundation is $30 per person, the club could offer something like a $20 rebate to any member who participates. The rebate would be reclaimed from the treasurer upon showing a suitable receipt. The possibility of discounted group rates was to be explored. A motion was made that the club make part payment of the admission for members to encourage participation and make use of our healthy finances. The motion was seconded and passed.

The club should consider the 2019 club trip and finalize the decision during the spring meetings.

3) Webstore

A special thank you was expressed to Bill Michaels for his efforts in getting the club store up and running.

4) Treasurer's report

An itemized breakdown of August transactions and starting and ending balances was read out. There was a motion from the floor to accept the report as read; it passed by floor vote. The business meeting then adjourned to be followed by Show-and-Tell and the monthly raffle.
